Scientific Biographical Note

In my research and teaching of thirty-five years (teaching in which I have always attempted to present my research results) I have been focussing on the following objectives and directions:

(a) a detailed, precise, corpus-based structural account, synchronic and diachronic, of central issues and subsystems in the languages I have studied; I have also dealt with the interface of linguistics, philology and ecdotics.

(b) Aiming at the understanding of specific constructions and patterns in given languages and comparatively between them, and at the subsequent establishment of a typological profile and general appreciation of the studied phenomena and features. So, for instance, nexus conversion (1995a, 1995b, 1989a, 1998a, forthcoming [f]); the Nominal Sentence (noun predication patterns: 1984a, 1998 ,1987a ,1999b); the Cleft Sentence (1978a, 1978c, 1986a, 1998, 1998a, current work).

(c) The contribution of general linguistic issues towards insights in basic areas of linguistic categorization. For instance, the adverb (1986a); the Proper Name (1989a, current work); nominal and verbal specificity (1998a, current work); possession in general and inalienable possession in particular (1995a, 1998 ,1994a, current work); narrative and dialogue grammar (1989d, 1997, current work); the grammar of question and response (1981, 1995a, current work); performatives (1995a, current work); text linguistics and discourse analysis (passim, esp. 1981b ,1997 , 1998a, 1998b, current work); the adnexal /ad-rhematic status of clauses and phrases 1972, 1986, 1998a); "mise en relief" (1986a, 1998a, current work); juncture features - linkage and delimitation (1998a, forthcoming a, b); the structural model and linguistic analysis (1986a, 1987, 1998a); the part-of-speech and other aprioristic logico-semantic models (1986a, 1998a etc.); the diachronic perspective (1973, 1974, 1981a, 1989c, 2000, current work); questions of terminology and conceptualization in grammatical analysis (passim); methods in dead-language research and teaching (1988 and passim); the non-geographical Sprachbund (1995a, 1998a and current work).

Current Research includes:

Topics in Bohairic Coptic Syntax - near completion (Narrative and Dialogue Grammar; Message Structure - Thematicity and Rhematicity, Focalization ands Topicalization; Specificity and Determination; Juncture Features): to be published by Peeters, Leuven.

A Comprehensive Syntax of Modern Literary Welsh (the literary works of Kate Roberts): in progress

A Comprehensive Coptic Grammar: the Bohairic Dialect, to be published by Brill, Leiden, in the Handbuch der Orientalistik series (study sponsored by the Israel Academy of Sciences).
